

WORKFORCE RECRUITMENT PROGRAM (WRP) AT DOD

CURRENT & RECENT GRADS

The WRP is a government-wide program managed by the U.S. Department of Labor and largely used by the Department of Defense. The program aims to increase federal employment opportunities for Schedule A eligible college students and recent graduates through internships.

SIGN UP!

Current college/university undergraduate, graduate, or doctoral students and recent graduates who are eligible for the Schedule A hiring authority can apply through WRP-participating schools or on wrp.gov. Visit wrp.gov or contact your school's disability services or career services coordinator to determine if your school is a current WRP participant.

ELIGIBILITY

To participate in the WRP, you must:

- Be a U.S. citizen
- Be 18 years old or older
- Have a Schedule A qualified disability
- Be a current college or university undergraduate, graduate, or doctoral student, or a recent graduate of a U.S. accredited college or university

WHY WRP?

- Gain valuable work experience in your field of study
- Make connections with potential employers
- Learn about federal government and private-sector employment opportunities
- Get support from a network of professionals with disabilities
- Increase your chances of being hired after graduation

Sign up for the WRP to open doors to federal internship and employment opportunities!
